Chicago, August 17.—Lord Dufferin, during his visit to the Board of Trade to-day made a speech in which he said that thought it did not become him, as Governor-General of Canada and legislator of the Crown, to express his sentiments on political questions, he could not but acknowledge that the Governments of Great Britain and Canada desired to pursue that line of policy that would tend to increase and develop the intercourse existing with the [illegible], and make relations with her closer and more satisfactory. He did not think the citizens of the United States wanted a one-side reciprocity treaty any more than did citizens of the Dominion. The Governor-General was heartily cheered during his speech, and at its conclusion by the members of the Board.

CONTEST FOR OFFICE.

We learn that the Supreme Court will be called on to decide, immediately, two important matters that are supposed to hinge on similar constitutional provisions. Judge Burnett, elected for the Second Judicial District, claims that the appointment of Judge Mosher by the Governor, made on the decease of the former incumbent, Judge Thayer, does not entitle him to hold the position after his successor is elected and qualified, and, having been elected and qualified, he claims his seat on the Supreme Bench. Mosher claims the seat until the regular term of the Supreme Court, which convenes on the 7th day of September, the present session being an adjourned one from last winter.

E. Semple the present State Printer, was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of T. Patterson. The Constitution provides that the State Printer shall be elected for four years, and in case of vacancy the Governor shall appoint, and the appointee shall hold until his successor is elected and qualified. Patterson was elected for four years from September, 1870. It is claimed that Semple holds only until his successor is elected and qualified, and Mart. Brown, being elected and having qualified, claims to be State Printer on the same ground that Burnett claims to immediately succeed Mosher. The constitutional provision is the same in each case, and it is reported that Supreme Court decisions now exist to confirm the claim to immediate succession.—Salem Record.

Another Water Spout in Nevada.

Austin, August 18.—A heavy rain storm, accompanied by thunder and lightning, set in at this place shortly after 5 this evening, and a few minutes after the commencement of the storm a foot of water was running through the streets. At half-past [illegible] some persons encamped on the hills, on the south side of the canyon, on which the town is built, rushed in a body to a hill overlooking the town, making frantic gestures, indicating impending danger. A [illegible] galloped through the canyon crying, "The water! the water! to the hills! to the hills!" and immediately behind him followed a wall of turbid water, eight feet in highth, which swept through the town like an avalanche, carrying destruction with it. For a few minutes nothing could be heard but the crash of timbers, falling awnings, and the crash of buildings and the deafening roar of the torrent. The people fled to the hills, and there in crowds witnessed the awful scene of destruction. Fortunately no lives were lost, as far as known. It is impossible to accurately estimate the amount of loss at present, but it is immense and cannot fall short of $100,000. At this hour, 9 P. M., a heavy torrent is rushing through the streets, and the rain is falling in torrents. The cause of the disaster appears to have been a cloud burst in the vicinity of the summit. Among the heaviest losers are: Ephraim & Co., William Gibson, Triplett & Clarke, S. Lewis & Bro., Bauer's Brewery, A. Sower and E. Wallach.

BY STATE TELEGRAPH.

An Unknown Corpse Discovered in the Willamette at Albany.

Albany, August 18.—As the Reed brothers (mere lads lately from the east) were walking along the bank of Willamette river, in the eastern suburbs of the city, late Sunday afternoon, they discovered in a drift the dead body of a man. They reported the fact at once. Justice Hannon summoned a jury Monday morning and proceeded to the spot. The corpse was taken from the river and every means taken to identify it, but without avail. It was the corpse of a man aged about 40 or 45, five feet six inches high, sandy hair, chin whiskers and [illegible], and had lain in the water several days. He had on dark clothes, was rather tidily dressed, had on boots a little run over at the [illegible], but otherwise good. He was buried by order of the Court yesterday.

OREGON.

There were about twenty cases on the Supreme Court docket last Monday.

The contract for building the new M. E. Church in Union has been awarded to Mr. S. T. Ulm.

Messrs. Wright & Sons have in their mill in Grand Ronde valley, 1,800 barrels of flour and wheat enough to make 400 barrels more.

The time for getting "chawed" up in threshing machines has come. The first victim is R. Swartz, of Howell Prairie, Marion county—hand crushed.

D. W. Hartley, of the Waldo hills, raised 45 bushels of wheat on an acre, or 020 bushels on four acres, according to the Statesman. This is an error in the figures.

A Mr. Bowman, living near the Wallamet, three miles below Albany, thinks he has discovered a coal mine on his farm. We are not informed whether it is bituminous or anthracite.

Three young men from Wheatland attacked Mr. Spong, who keeps the ferry below Salem, but were driven off by the wife and daughter of Mr. S. The attacking party was thoroughly drunk.

The Umatilla Indians have been on Snake river trading with the Bannock Indians, and are returning in small bands loaded with buffalo robes, for which they exchanged Indian horses.

Mr. W. J. Snodgrass, the pioneer merchant of Oro Dell will leave in about two weeks to attend the session of the Right Worthy Grand Lodge of I. O. O. F., which will be held in Atlanta, Ga.

The barn of Mr. Downing, who lives near Weston, was set on fire by a stroke of lightning, on the 5th, and several hundred bushels of wheat were consumed as well as the building containing it.

We would ask the Pendleton Tribune if it makes much difference now whether Mr. Stewart, who was instantly killed by falling over a precipice on the 3d inst., fell 370 or 970 feet. If it does, we are willing to stand corrected.

A grain-header, with team attached, ran into a yellow jackets' nest the other day. The machine being in advance stirred them up, and the team got the benefit and ran away. The damages were slight this time, but the same concern encountered another nest of the same insects, and was completely demoralized and badly broken up.

A Sunday School Convention for Union county will be held on the camp ground near Proebstel's on the last Saturday in this month. The annual address will be delivered by Rev. H. K. Hines. The La Grande Brass Band will be in attendance. The exercise will consist of songs, speeches, &c.

A party of emigrants passed through Union last week from Missouri. They were on their way to Whatcom county, W. T., via Walla Walla, where they expect to meet friends who will conduct them across the Cascade mountains. They had come all the way with teams and been four months on the way.

Messrs. Thompson & Barnhart, living near the mouth of Birch creek, have recently completed a sale of 3,900 pounds of wool delivered at Umatilla Landing, for 24c per pound. Their sheep did not yield as much this year as last by at least one-third—a result which they think attributable to the unusually cold and severe weather of last winter.

Sommer and Baer, of Union, last week purchased of Payne Bros., of the Cove, 180 pounds of wool clipped from 16 Merino sheep. The heaviest fleece weighed 16½ pounds. The average weight of the fleeces was about 11 pounds and 5½ ounces. Certainly that is a good sheep country.

The citizens of Lower Molalla precinct in Clackamas county propose to clear off the ground, enclose with a neat fence and plant shrubbery in the Rock Creek Cemetery, thus testifying regard for their buried friends. Any contributions for the purpose from those who have friends buried there will be thankfully received and faithfully applied.

The Times is reliably informed that the North Western Stage Company will transfer its line of stages from the Meacham road across the Blue mountains to the new Summerville and Walla Walla road. They will leave the old road at Union and pass along the east side of Grand Ronde valley, which they will leave at Summerville and cross the mountains at Weston, from there connect with the old road at Pendleton.

The Salem Statesman says the progress made by the Alden Fruit Drying Company is really astonishing. Although but a few short days have passed since it was first organized, machinery is already on the way, which has been paid for, and the next steamer for San Francisco will carry as a passenger Rev. P. S. Knight of this city, who goes thither in the interest of the company. It really looks as if it would very soon be in complete running order.

On Sunday afternoon, the 8th instant, the town of Union and vicinity was visited by a heavy thunderstorm, accompanied with rain. For nearly two hours there was one continued roar of thunder, interspersed every now and then with terrific claps. The cloud broke about five miles above Union in Pyles' canyon. At Mr. Yowe's place the rain came down in torrents. The water in his meadow stood over a foot in depth, destroying his hay crop which had been cut and cured, and was at the time standing in the cock.

The mines in Auburn district, Baker county, are proving more favorable than they ever have heretofore, new claims being opened that will last and pay better than any ground ever discovered in Oregon. Mr. Darce, the gentleman who discovered these diggings, has been residing near Auburn for the last ten or twelve years. Mr. D. went there a poor man and has remained so until last spring, he made a move to try mining for luck. That has proven favorable to him, and he is to-day a man of wealth.

The Sentinel says: "Last year there were many horses died in this valley of what was called "Black Distemper." This year a distemper of a somewhat different character is prevalent among full grown horses and down to sucking colts. The animal discharges copiously from the nose and the throat swells. In some instances a swelling appears in other parts of the body and becomes a running sore. A great many colts and horses have died from this disease. The Black Distemper of last year was confined to the southwest portion of the valley, while this year it is common to all sections.

Butter Creek, in Umatilla county, has heretofore, in dry weather, been a very sluggish stream; in fact, in places, becomes entirely dry. A few days since, while the weather was yet hot and dry, it was noticed that the creek was running bank-full of clear, spring-like water. On investigation it was found that some eighteen miles above the residence of Frank Ewing, near the foothills of the Blue Mountains, there had bursted forth from a heretofore dry hillside a magnificent stream of water. For ten days after its appearance no sign of failure or decrease in the volume of water presented itself. If the stream so continues it will be of almost inestimable value to the Butter Creek Valley, both for irrigating and stock-raising purposes.

A company of seven old experienced California miners, from Marysville, Cal., are now engaged in putting in a flume near Auburn, Baker county, that cannot be excelled by any in the State, commencing near Powder river on Mill creek, takes in Quaconsal, Ohio, French and Hoogeye gulches, and when finished will be about three miles in length and three and a half feet wide, three feet deep, and the bottom lined with rock twelve inches thick. This company are in good spirits and will have their undertaking completed and ready for operation by next spring. They purchased the Auburn canal ditch, in all about 130 miles. They are making preparations to put the ditch in good repair and build several reservoirs, and will have water to supply about 2,000 miners more next season than there are at present.

BLACKMAILED.

By Cleveland—In your statement you have alluded to one payment of $5,000. Have you furnished any other money to those parties? A.—I have furnished at least $2,000 besides.

Q.—To whom did you pay that money? A.—To Moulton.

Q.—In various sums? A.—In various sums, partly in cash and partly in checks.

Q.—Have you any of those checks? A.—I have several; I don't remember how many.

Q.—Where are they? A.—I have some of them here. One of June 23d, 1871, drawn on the Mechanics' bank, to the order of Frank Moulton, and indorsed in his hand writing, and one November 10th, 1871, payable to the order of Frank Moulton, and indorsed in his hand writing, and one May 20th, 1872, to the order of F. D. Moulton, and also indorsed in his hand writing. Each of these that are marked for deposit across the face have been paid.

Q.—As nearly as you can recollect how much money was paid into the hands of Moulton? A.—I should say I have paid $7,000.

Q.—To what use did you suppose that money was to be appropriated? A.—I supposed that it was to be [illegible] to extricate Tilton from his difficulties in some way.

Q.—You did not stop to inquire why? A.—Moulton sometimes sent me notes, saying, "I wish you would send me a check for so much."

Q.—Did you usually respond to the demands of Moulton for money during those months? A.—I always did.

Q.—Under what circumstances did you come to pay $5,000 in one sum? A.—Because it was represented to me that the whole difficulty could be now settled by that amount of money, which would [illegible] the affairs of the Golden Age on a secure footing. They would be able to go right on, and with the going on of them the safety of Tilton would be assured and that would be a settlement of the whole thing. It was to save Tilton pecuniarily.

Q.—Were there any documents shown to you by Moulton? What did he show you before you made payments? A.—It was the result of intimations and a general statement, and I finally said to him: "I am willing to pay $5,000." I came to do it this way. There was a discussion about that paper. Moulton was constantly advancing money, as he said, to help Tilton. The paper was needy. One evening I was at his house. We were alone together in a back parlor, and Moulton took out of his pocket a letter from [illegible]. It was read to me. The writer mentioned contributions which the writer had made to Theodore. I understood from him that the writer of this letter had given him some thousands of dollars down in cash; and then, taking out two time checks or drafts, which, as I recollect, were on bluish paper, although I am not sure of that; there were two checks, each of them amounting to $1,000 or $2,000 more, and I should think it amounted in all to about $6,000, although my memory about the quantity and exact figures is to be taken with great allowance; but it produced the impression on me that the writer had given him one or two thousand dollars in cash down; and as the writer explained in the letter, it was not convenient to give the balance in money at that time, but that the writer had drawn time drafts which would be just as useful to him as money, and Moulton slapped the table and said, "Yes, it was." When I got home, and thinking about it in my room: "Why," said I, "what a fool! I never dreamed what he [illegible]." Then I went to him and said: "I am willing to make contributions and put thinks beyond controversy." Well, he said like this: He thought it would be the best investment ever made in my life. I then went to the savings bank and put

A MORTGAGE FOR $5,000 ON MY HOUSE.

I took the check which was given me by the bank's lawyer, and put it into the bank, and on Moulton's suggestion that it would be better than to have the check drawn to his order, I drew the money in five hundred dollars or one thousand dollar bills, I have forgotten which; but I know they were large, for I carried the roll in my hand; and these I gave into his hands from time to time. He spoke in the most glowing terms, and said he was feeling it put to Theodore; at the first [illegible], he gave him $500 at once and sent with it a promissory note for Theodore to sign, but that Theodore did not sign it, and sent it back to him, saying he saw no prospect in the end of paying loans; and he could not honorably therefore accept them, and refused to sign any note, and Moulton laughed significantly, and said Tilton subsequently took the money without giving any note.

Q.—Did you receive any note or security whatever, or evidence of debt from Moulton? Or has there been any offer to return the money to you? A.—Nothing of the kind was ever expected by either party.

Q.—Has Moulton said anything to you about the money? A.—About the time of the publication of the Bacon letter, I think, I had been given to understand that he had offered $5,000 in gold to Tilton, if he would not publish that letter; and at that stage of affairs Moulton felt profoundly that Tilton could not come out with the disclosure of all the matter without leaving him in an awkward position. It led to some little conversation about a supply of money, and he said that I had better give him my whole fortune than have Tilton go on in his course.

Q.—That you had better give your whole fortune to Tilton? A.—Yes, rather than have Tilton go into this fight.

Q.—Was this before or after the publication of the Bacon letter? A.—I can't be certain about that. It was about that time.

Q.—Did Moulton ever question you in regard to this matter, whether you had ever spoken of that to any one or expressed any anxiety in your mind about it? A.—He did; not many weeks ago, among the last interviews I had with him.

Q.—Since the publication of the Bacon letter? A.—Yes; I think it was on the Sabbath day after the appointment of this committee. I preached but once on that day, and on the afternoon of that day he saw me, and said to me in a conversation: "You have never mentioned about that $5,000?" I said yes, I had, to one or two persons. I mentioned it to Oliver Johnson for one, because he was saying something to me one day about what some of Tilton's friends were saying, and I incidentally mentioned that to him, which he never repeated, I suppose, to anybody. Moulton said: "I will never admit that. I shall deny it always."

Q.—Have you any objections to state what Tilton's friends were saying to Oliver Johnson and others? What did Oliver Johnson say to you? A.—Once he reported to me that among the friends of Tilton he had heard remarks made against me; that I neither was endeavoring to help Theodore in reputation or in any other way, and that the expression was this: "That I had been the instrument of his being thrown off the track in life, and that I would not reinstate him." I replied in substance that so far as I myself was concerned, I not only longed and tried to do what I could for Tilton, but his association with Woodhull was fatal to him, and could not make any head against it; and with regard to the other, I said, to him that I had been willing to help him materially, and that I had paid $5,000 to him.

Q.—Did you have any other conversation with Tilton soon after the payment of the $5,000.

TILTON VERY GRACIOUS AFTER RECEIVING $5,000.

A.—On the Sunday morning following the payment of $5,000, I was going to church, and I met Tilton standing right opposite to the house. He put his arm through mine, and was in his most beatific mood. While walking along down to the church he was talking all the way of grace, mercy and peace, to me; and at that time I recollect thinking that $5,000 is very mollifying.

By Claflin—Did you at any time receive a note, which the Committee have in evidence, as follows: "H. W. B.—Grace, mercy and peace. T. T. Sunday morning."

A.—Yes. He sent it on Sunday morning by his wife, who had it laid on my pulpit stand.

By Cleveland—If your mortgage was dated about May 1st, 1872, the money of which was paid to Moulton after your mortgage was made? A.—Yes, sir. I did, not keep the money an hour. I went with it directly from the Mechanics' Bank, where I drew it, and put it into Moulton's hands on the same day, and within a few hours.

Q.—At his house? A.—I do not know.

Q.—Did you have trouble with Tilton during the latter part of that month, before the 1st of June, 1873? A.—I do not know the months in which I have not had trouble with him; but he made a special outburst at the end of May, 1873, on account of the publication of the tripartite agreement, which led to my letter to Moulton of June 1st, 1873.

Q.—Here is a letter of May 1st, 1874, in which Tilton refers to some story of Carpenter about you offering money. Did you receive that letter? A.—I did so.

IT WAS A MAGNIFICENT HUMBUG.

I knew Tilton knew he had been tickeling my gold in his pockets for months and years, and he wrote that letter to me for a show and a mask.

Q.—What did you understand by Carpenter's relation to a money matter. A.—My first knowledge of Carpenter was that he was putting his nose into this business which did not concern him. That was also Moulton's impression. I asked Moulton one day, "What under the sun is Carpenter doing around here, and me [illegible] with this [illegible]?" He summarily damned him and represented him as a good-natured, well-meaning busy-body. I said, "Why doesn't he tell him that his presence is not wanted?" He said, "Well, he serves us some useful purposes. When we learn of things going on in the clubs or any place in New York, we put Carpenter on the truck and he fetches all the rumors, and so we use him to find out what we could not get otherwise;" and I did notice that he not only did that, but that Carpenter was one of those good-natured men, whose [illegible] expended itself in trying to settle quarrels and difficulties, by picking up everything he could hear said by or against a man and carrying it to the parties where it would do the most harm possible.

CARPENTER A GOOD-NATURED FOOL.

He was a kind, genial, good-natured fool, and in all this matter has been a tool more than a helper. He has never since [illegible] anything except in the kindest way, and never once did anything in the whole of this matter from beginning to end that was not a stupid blunder. I made up my mind before beginning that as I was silent to everybody in this matter I could be especially silent to him (Carpenter). I recollect but one interview with him that had any particular significance. He came to see me when the Council was in session, and our document was published. There was a phrase introduced into it, that Tilton thought pointed to him, and that night he was in a bonfire of fever, and walked up and down the street with Moulton. I was in at Freedland, and in [illegible], with his

DARK AND MYSTERIOUS EYES

As he sat down on the sofa, and in a kind of sepulchral tone whispered to me of some "[illegible]ters." Says I, "That is all nonsense;" that it meant nothing, and Carpenter was rejoiced to hear it, and then went out. On another occasion he came to me, and in a [illegible] glow of benevolence said there was to be a newspaper established in New York, and that I was to take charge, and half a million was to be raised almost at the tap of a drum. I was greatly amused, but said gravely, "Well Carpenter, if I should ever leave the pulpit, I think it very likely I should go into journalism. It would be more natural to me than anything else." That made the amount of that conviction. Another conversation I have some recollection of, in April, when Moulton had a plan on foot to buy the Christian Age, and [illegible]

SEND TILTON TO EUROPE.

Carpenter came in and talked with me about it. I recollect very distinctly the conversation. My eyes were beginning to be [illegible]. My education was beginning to tell on me a little. I said to Carpenter, distinctly: "Mr. Carpenter, that is a matter with which I can have nothing to do. I don't know but that if Tilton wishes to go to Europe with his family and live there some time that his friends would be willing to raise the money; but that is a matter which you must talk to somebody else about, and not with me." I never said if Tilton printed his documents I would never ascend the pulpit [illegible], nor make such a remark to as weak a [illegible] he.

THE TERRITORIES.

J. Stitzel and family left Walla Walla for Colville on Wednesday of last week.

The Democratic Territorial Central Committee of Idaho have called a meeting to be held at Boise City on the 29th day of this month.

The schooner Louisa M[illegible] sailed from Shoalwater Bay on the 15th inst. for San Francisco, with a cargo of 5,000 baskets of oysters.

It is thought by the Commissioners of Ada county, I. T., that they can run the county with $12,000 less than has ordinarily been used.

The telegraph line from Winnemucca to Silver City was within twenty miles of the latter place on the 8th and is probably completed by this time.

A Silver City man complains that his wife is an inflationist. She blows him up every day, and makes him circulate until he actually feels he is beyond redemption.

The Salt Lake Tribune says: "The police received $1,147 last month. This is $143 apiece to men who do more to [illegible] upon the laws than they do to preserve the peace of the city.

A teacher of the Silver City Sunday School asked a young urchin, not long ago, how old his brother was and received the following answer: "Dunno, but he has just started o' swearing."

In the vicinity of Dayton, W. T., the farmers are busy threshing their grain crops. The yield of wheat will not, from present indications, be much more than one-half of the usual crop.

A letter to the Spirit from Waitsburg, W. T., says: Farmers generally in this vicinity are very busily engaged with their harvest. Crops are light, but enough will be raised to supply the home demand are more.

Samuel Woodruff, while chopping wood, some distance from Olympia, the other day, struck the ax into the instep of his foot, cutting a severe gash. As he had several miles to walk before he obtained assistance, he came near fainting with loss of blood.

Sixteen soldiers and a commissioned officer arrived at the garrison at Walla Walla on Monday of last week. The enlisted men were mostly deserters who availed themselves of the President's proclamation, and they will very soon proceed to their respective companies.

A call has been issued numerously signed for an Independent County Convention to be held in Walla Walla city on Saturday, the 29th inst., to nominate candidates for district and county officers and to select delegates to attend a Territorial Convention to nominate a delegate for Congress.

The Walla Walla Spirit of the 14th says: "There is a rumor afloat that news has reached the garrison to the effect that the settlers in the Wallowa valley, for some cause not stated, have fired upon the Indians in that vicinity. As yet we are unable to trace the report to any reliable source or to gain any further particulars."

Near fifteen hundred dollars has been subscribed toward the erection of a new Church edifice for the Seventh Day Adventists at Walla Walla, and work upon the building will soon be commenced. A good location has been secured and a lot donated in Chabot's Addition. The Society now numbers about fifty-eight members.

The Tribune says: "Just [illegible] Bro. Van Etten, of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, got away with the paltry sum of $9,000, the Mormon Church papers call him a scoundrel. Brigham Young swindles the people out of [illegible] that [illegible] the; and called the Profit of the Lord and the best man in the kingdom."

[illegible] FISHERIES OF NE[illegible]

THEIR CONDITION ON THE [illegible] COAST.

The attention of Congress having been directed to the decrease of the food-fishes on the sea-coast and in the lakes of the United States, that body passed a joint resolution instructing United States Commissioner Spencer F. Baird to institute inquiries as to the cause of the decline in so important an [illegible] and [illegible] the result. In accordance therewith, and during 1871 and 1872, investigations were made along the south coast of New England, the result of which is [illegible]. In [illegible] the results obtained by the investigation, Prof. Baird, in his report, states "that this is but the first of two [illegible], and [illegible] to be [illegible] by a careful comparison of [illegible] for [illegible] successive years. Enough, however, has [illegible] determined to furnish a [illegible] in [illegible] that in regard to the habits of the fishes and of the methods most likely to accomplish the object of their restoration to their original condition." The objects of the investigation, as [illegible] by Congress, were, first, to determine the facts as to the alleged decrease of the food-fishes; secondly, if such a decrease [illegible], to [illegible] of the same; and [illegible] for the [illegible]ation of the supply. A fourth [illegible] incidental to the rest, was to work out the problems connected with the physical character of the seas adjacent to the fishing [illegible], and the natural history of the inhabitants of the water, whether vertebrate or invertebrate, and the associated vegetable life. It is the purpose of this article to give Prof. Baird's views on the decrease of the fish along our [illegible], and to sum up in a future [illegible] the [illegible] of the decrease and the remedial measures suggested by that gentleman.

DECREASE OF THE FISH.

Prof. Baird states: Bearing in mind that the present report has more [illegible] to the south side of New England, and [illegible] to that portion of it extending from Point Judith on the west to Monomoy Point on the east, including Narragansett bay, Vineyard sound, Buzzard's bay, [illegible] and Nantucket, I have no hesitation in stating that the fact of an alarming decrease of the shore fisheries has been thoroughly established by my own investigations, as well as by [illegible] of those whose testimony was [illegible] the subject. Comparatively a few years ago this region was perhaps the [illegible] of the [illegible] important [illegible] on our [illegible] the number of southern or deep sea species [illegible] to its shoal bays and inlets to deposit their [illegible] being almost incredible. The testimony of the earliest writers as well as that given by witnesses examined as to the abundance of the fish [illegible] it is believed to be by no [illegible]ated; and even within the memory of [illegible] now living the [illegible] ingly great. The most [illegible] of the fish referred to were the [illegible], the [illegible] fish, the striped bass and the [illegible] tion to which [illegible], although equally [illegible] the king fish, the [illegible]. The appearance of [illegible] fish [illegible] and their arrival upon the shore [illegible] looked upon with almost the same [illegible] as the return of migratory birds, [illegible] year by year, with [illegible] more capricious [illegible] belonging [illegible] to the division of [illegible] fishes, [illegible] the [illegible], the Spanish mackerel, the bonito, etc. [illegible] as likewise the salmon, at an earlier [illegible] although this fish was [illegible] at a [illegible]. In view of the [illegible] though this had [illegible] with the [illegible], however, [illegible] with the subject, go to prove that the [illegible] has continued in an alarmingly [illegible] ratio during the last fifteen or [illegible] even less; and I can [illegible] where nine [illegible] ago an [illegible] of scup, tautog, [illegible] etc., [illegible] could be caught, do not now yield [illegible] part the weight of fish in the [illegible] at the same [illegible]. The [illegible] referred to is, perhaps, not felt [illegible] the entire coast, but in [illegible] the complaint in regard to it is [illegible] persons are in the habit of [illegible] the fish supply of the sea is practically inexhaustible, and therefore that a scarcity of any particular location is to be [illegible] to the movements of the fish, in [illegible] feeding grounds capriciously, or else in following the migration from place to place of the food upon which they live.

This may be true to a certain extent, but it is difficult to point out any locality where, near the shores in the New England States, at least, under the [illegible] view of the case, the fish are quite as plentiful as they were some years ago; and still [illegible] no where, by their overlapping the original [illegible] of the sea-bottom, they [illegible] ance [illegible] for [illegible], if the [illegible] of the fish is [illegible] to their going off into the [illegible] it is of course [illegible] the fisher[illegible] as ever, if they do not come upon [illegible] grounds as well [illegible] his lines or weirs.

It is by no means to be inferred [illegible] remarks as to the scarcity of fish that [illegible] are [illegible] caught now than [illegible] at any [illegible] the contrary, [illegible] the [illegible] vided by means of the improved [illegible] of capture, in the way of pounds and [illegible] an immense supply is [illegible] at certain [illegible] of the year so as frequently to glut the markets. The scarcity [illegible] is [illegible] by the great difficulty experienced by line fishermen in securing a proper supply throughout the year on grounds where they were formerly able to catch all they needed for their own use and for sale.

The evil effects of the state of things here indicated are felt in many ways. Primarily on the part of many fishermen, resident on the coast, who have been in the habit of making a living by the proceeds of their occupation, not only supplying themselves with food, [illegible] and salt for the year, but also making a comfortable living by sales of their surplus. At the present time this resource is cut off to a great degree from this class of people in many places on the Massachusetts coast, wherein, as on Nantucket, Martha's Vineyard, and [illegible] where the deprivation from the loss of profits by fishing is being more seriously felt.

The result, of course, of the inability to make a living in this manner is to drive the line fishermen to other occupations, and especially to induce them to leave the State for other fields of industry. In consequence the population is reduced, and the community feels this drain of some of its best material in many ways. Furthermore, property depreciates in value, farms and houses are abandoned, the average of taxation is increased, and many other evils, readily [illegible] themselves are developed.

Again, an important stimulus to the building of ships and boats is lost in the decreasing demand for vessels of various grades; and, what is more important to the country at large, the training of skilled seamen with which to supply our national and our merchant marine generally is stopped, or more or less interfered with. It is well known that the line fisheries, in their different manifestations, have always been looked upon as of the utmost importance in a political economical point of view, for which [illegible] bounties were paid by the General Government; and, although these have been lately withheld, it may yet be necessary to restore them in order to regain our lost ground.

Gen. Hancock reproves a Pennsylvania editor for nominating him for the next Presidency at this early date, and he requests him to say that he is not seeking the Democratic nomination in 1876, as reported, has never yet sought any political [illegible], and [illegible] to[illegible].

WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 19 1874

A WORD FOR THE GOOD INDIANS.

The telegraph brings cheering intelligence from the seat of war with the Indians of the plains. It is announced that the determination has been reached in a council of the hostile aborigines of various tribes heretofore leagued together to butcher white settlers, to return to the agency and be good Indians. Bearing directly upon the subject [illegible] of probability to the story, is the further statement that the Indians that are coming in to the agency are in the extremest poverty and destitution and are actually suffering from hunger. Then let it be [illegible] spent and the winter will soon be upon the houseless people of the Lo race, and there [illegible] this very pleasing account of the change in the disposition of these unfortunate and misguided men and brethren.

Should it prove true that the sons of the forest are [illegible] with the war [illegible] their [illegible] unstrung and their quivers as empty as [illegible], it is to be hoped those who have charge of affairs at the agency have the milk of human kindness in their hearts to such a degree as will enable them to forget all the wrongs the returning braves have done, remember all the wrongs they have suffered, and receive [illegible] which distinguishes noble from base natures. The time till [illegible] shall be past and the opening of spring afford opportunity to [illegible] gentle wards of the government to [illegible] with their [illegible] of tomahawking and scalping pale-faces will be short enough at best for them to recover the physical strength and [illegible] they have lost in the arduous campaign and unusual privations of the past summer. This should be taken into consideration, and everything should be done that can be done by the [illegible] and all [illegible] representatives of the government, to hasten their complete recuperation. Their horses too should be well housed and groomed so they will be strong for the next raid, and if some of the animals should prove to be worn out and unfit for further service, these should be replaced by others that are equal to the hard usage to which they must be subjected. Nor should the matter of weapons be overlooked. Such of the Indians as have acquired [illegible] skill in the use of firearms should be provided with the most improved rifles, with fixed ammunition in abundance, and the arrows of the rest should be feathered [illegible]. This could be done during the winter by those whites who remain about the agency without sufficient employment to keep [illegible] busy. With anything [illegible] diligent attention to these matters the campaign of next summer [illegible] more successful than that which has just closed, and may be made with less hardship to the Indians.

Looking at the treatment the Indians have [illegible] received at the hands of the Government, under [illegible] circumstances, it [illegible] unnecessary to remind the authorities of their duty in the present emergency, [illegible] such as just the [illegible] has gone [illegible] been [illegible] by having the Indians in charge whenever any marauding band [illegible] forced by the stress of circumstance to become good [illegible] during bad weather and until they could fatten up a little. It is therefore not without somewhat of reluctance that we offer these few remarks upon the subject, and we do so solely for the reason that there appears to be still lingering in the minds of not a few otherwise intelligent [illegible] people an old-fashioned notion that the Indians should be placed under some kind of restraint, such as would render the indulgence of their normal appetite for murdering white people impossible, or at least greatly discourage it, and some even go so far as to hold [illegible] the marauders, on returning from their annual expeditions in search of scalps, should receive positive punishment instead of the [illegible] welcome which is usually accorded to them.

THE SALMON FISHERIES.

In this morning's paper [illegible] an article on the "Sea Fisheries of New England," taken from one of the leading papers of the East. This article is number one of a series of papers on the same subject. We shall present number two in a few days, as the subject is one in which Oregon and her sister Washington have a direct and immediate interest. One of the greatest industries of this State and the adjoining Territory, and one of the most productive is the fishing business. Next to wheat the fish that is shipped from the Columbia is the most valuable export of the State. But will this continue? Will the supply not be exhausted by the present [illegible]? This is a question of such moment to the prosperity of the State that it ought to command the serious attention of the Legislature of the State and Territory [illegible]. The legislation that has taken place heretofore for the protection and preservation of fish, has been by no means sufficiently guarded nor sufficient to accomplish the object [illegible]. The whole matter has been [illegible] by [illegible] of impracticable or unimportant, instead of being made the subject of careful investigation and well [illegible]. Whatever laws regulating the taking of salmon have been brought before our Legislature, they have found neither [illegible] nor friends, neither opposition nor support. Crude and ineffectual, they have generally been accepted without scrutiny and put through in a [illegible] manner, to remain thenceforth virtually a dead letter.

Wherever the taking of migratory fish has been carried on extensively and without legal regulation and restriction for a long time the result has been to exhaust the supply. Salmon has been no exception. The salmon has long since almost wholly disappeared from many rivers in which it was formerly found in almost unlimited [illegible] this been [illegible] also [illegible] it appears the Rhine was once as prolific of salmon as the Columbia is at present. Rhine salmon is now a rare dish.

It is true the disappearance of fish in the streams which they used to inhabit is not [illegible] entirely to reckless or imprudent fishing. The pollution of the waters consequent upon the establishment of manufactories along the streams has doubtless contributed to the result. But there can be no doubt that improvident modes of fishing have also done much to exhaust the supply.

The subject assumes new importance in this country at the present time on account of the rapid increase of the fishing business. Many large canning establishments were built during last winter and spring, and made their first season's work this summer. Other establishments are in contemplation, and will probably be erected in time for next spring's run. These, with the old fisheries, will make the capacity of all the establishments together sufficient to use up all the fish that can well be taken on the whole fishing ground from Rainier to the mouth of the river.

To make any legislation effectual, Oregon and Washington Territory must cooperate with each other. They must both enact the same law, or the best law that either can devise will be of no utility. But somebody must take the initiative. Let the Legislature of Oregon, now about to convene, begin.

There should be some regulation adopted by the City Council for cases of the removal of buildings along First street. While buildings are being removed along this street the running of the street cars is obstructed greatly to the inconvenience of the street railway company and the public. Houses must be moved on First street as well as other streets but those who have the moving of them should be required to push the work along as speedily as possible so as to cause the least possible inconvenience to others who have to use the street. When a building is once on the street every hour of daylight should be improved till the building is out of the way.

THE ADULTERATION OF FOOD

Every now and then an outcry is made about the extent to which the adulteration of articles of food is carried, and a very uneasy feeling is produced in the community thereby. The more nervous class of people get the idea that nearly everything that comes from the grocer the butcher, the baker, and the milkman is untrustworthy if not positively injurious. It is curious also that while our people generally have a high idea of the purity of English products for the table—which is due doubtless to the deserved reputation of the great English manufacturers and exporters for the transatlantic market—the English people themselves have had more than their share of the panics about adulteration. One of these recently gave rise to a Parliamentary Commission which made a thorough examination of the matter. The chief conclusion was very encouraging namely, that not only was the adulteration of food much less prevalent than had been supposed, but so far as it went it resulted in the public being cheated rather than poisoned. The majority of cases discovered were like the watering of milk and the coloring of butter with carrot juice—devices either to make the real commodity go farther in weight or measurement or to give it the appearance of being worth a higher price. The Committee also found that the adulteration really existing is rarely the work of the retail dealer so that his punishment would not avail to prevent it.

We have reason to believe that these conclusions would be equally applicable to this country in respect to local products, while as to teas, wines and other products equally foreign to both, they would be, of course, no different. There are adulterated articles of food on every hand at the same time there is no difficulty in getting the pure articles the difference being that merely of buying of different dealers and paying a little higher price. Generally speaking the customer can sufficiently protect himself. If he finds that he has been deceived either intentionally or through carelessness by one dealer, he leaves him and tries another. The first [illegible] requisite is for the householder to know what he or she wants when it is good and when it is not and to be firm against being imposed upon. If the great majority of customers were of this stamp, adulterated articles would not pay and would drop out of the market. This implies, however much more [illegible] than the average intelligence as for instance in regard to milk which varies so greatly with the food, the breed of cattle the treatment of the animals and other facts that when a lady once boasted that her milk was always the same a dealer was probably warranted in smiling and saying "then it is doctored."

How far legislation can go to punish and prevent adulteration does not seem to be settled. They are trying the experiment in England now, having adopted the Adulteration of Food Act in 1872. The Committee referred to above say that it has done much good, but at the same time that it has inflicted considerable injury and imposed heavy and undeserved penalties upon some respectable tradesmen—the latter result arising from the punishment of those who merely sold adulterated articles in the ordinary way, [illegible] imposed upon by manufacturers or wholesalers. With regard to adulterations that are poisonous or clearly injurious to the health of the community, they ought to be guarded against by law and the guilty parties heavily punished. In commodities like milk of universal use and where though mere watering would not affect the health of the great majority of customers, it would endanger the lives of infants and invalids it is important to have legal regulations which can be enforced at any time. And probably it is well to have [illegible] always on the statute book for extreme [illegible] and for seasons when the abuse reaches an intolerable degree of prevalence but ordinarily, individual care and firmness answer for [illegible].

The La Grande Sentinel says the Fair grounds of the Union County Agricultural Society are being thoroughly repaired and improved and every preparation is being made to make the coming Fair a grand success. The race track, which is the pride of every stock raiser in Union county is in splendid condition. The Society have made arrangements for the erection of more stables for the better accommodation of stock. Messrs McComas and Warnick are constructing a large pavilion to be used for the double purpose of a restaurant and to seat an immense crowd, so as to enable the spectator to have a full view of the races. Several horses are now at the Fair grounds and are being put in training for the trials of speed. Everything seems to indicate that the Union County Fair for the year 1874 will be one of which the people of Eastern Oregon may well feel proud.

RATHER LIKED IT.—Some farmers found smoking very effectual. When the grasshoppers were flying they placed damp prairie grass on the windward side of their fields and set fire to it. The grasshoppers either did not alight or, if they did, did not stay long. But this was not always successful. A farmer in a county east of here who tried it told me that at first thought he thought the hoppers about to leave, he went away for a fresh load of grass and when he came back he found the rascals roosting on the fence and warming their feet by the fires. After that the hotter he made the fires and the denser the smoke the better they seemed to like it.—[illegible] about Grasshoppers.

At Dayton W T on the 7th inst Deputy G Com J M Howe assisted by Judge Adams and Messrs R Rosly and J Fiery all of Lewiston, organized an Encampment of the Champions of the Red Cross, with twenty-five charter members in Richardson's new hall. The officers elected were J H Laster, C, Mrs Hendeshot J C, J W Mead [illegible] C of H, Wm Metzger F S, Mrs. Wheeler T, Mrs. Parker, I G, Richardson, O G.

Messrs. Wright & Sons of Union Union county are preparing the basement story of their large building on Front street for a Court House including Sheriff's office Clerk's office, jury rooms, etc. The building has been rented by the county for one year.

RIVER AND COAST IMPROVEMENTS.

The snag puller is now rendering effective work along the upper Willamette At last accounts the boat was at Wheatland

In compliance with recommendations made to the Department by Commodore Spotts and General Michler the light house at Yaquina Bay will be discontinued after the 1st of October

To day Mr Beaumon will start down the river for the purpose of making soundings preparatory to the resumption of operations by the dredger He will carefully examine the channel at Swan Island Postoffice Bar and St Helen's Bar

After many disheartening drawbacks and tedious delays the work of constructing a breakwater across Percey's Slough is completed In a few days a competent Government surveyor will examine the improvement and then accept or reject the work

By instructions from Captain Davis Chairman of the Light House Board who was out on an inspecting tour to the Northwest coast a short time since a road is being constructed from the landing to Point Adams over which the necessary materials for the new light house will be hauled This road will soon be completed

Information has been received from the contractors of the new light house to be built the present season at Point Adams that all the timbers necessary to the building have been got out Negotiations are being effected for the purchase of a large quantity of brick and other materials Whenever all the arrangements are consummated the materials will be shipped to the Point and work on the light house building be commenced

A large party of men are now engaged in making Government surveys over on San Juan Island under the superintendence of General Michler There are about 30 men employed in making the surveys Four parties are engaged in surveying and a fifth in making hydrographic examinations It is calculated that all the work required by the Government will be completed about the 15th of September Until the completion of these surveys, it is hardly probable that Gen Michler will return

Appropriations were made by Congress for the construction of a keeper's dwelling at Cape Flattery Light house, building cisterns, and making repairs at Smith's Island also general repairs at Admiralty Head Instructions have been forwarded to have these improvements made immediately. Workmen will commence in a few days at these several points As the season has already far advanced operations will be crowded forward expeditiously, so that the improvements may be finished before the early winter rains

As soon as the several surveying parties now employed over at San Juan have finished work there they will be sent to examine the various rivers mentioned in the appropriation These rivers are Snake river, from the Shoshone Falls to Lewiston, Chehalis Snohomish Skagit, Yamhill and the Columbia between the Cascades and Dalles The object of examining the Chehalis, Snohomish and Skagit rivers (all of which are in Washington Territory) is to determine the feasibility and cost of removing the immense jams of logs which have accumulated for the last half century and present an insurmountable obstacle in the way of navigation Columbia river will be examined between the points mentioned for the purpose of ascertaining as near as possible the practicability and cost of constructing canals and locks. These surveys will require the several parties employed most if not all of the fall months For purposes of such examinations, Congress has appropriated the sum of $0 500

BROUGHT TO EARTH

AN ADROIT AND SUCCESSFUL THIEF AND BURGLAR TRAPPED

Our readers will remember the numerous larcenies and burglaries that have been from time to time reported through our columns The thief (for so it turns out to be) has for several months completely baffled the efforts of the Police, and so numerous had these thefts become that the belief was becoming widespread that there must be a large and well organized band of thieves in our midst Yesterday, however dispelled the illusion and proved that most of the depredations have been committed by one Steve Cardiff with half a dozen aliases Officer, Kelley, under orders from Chief Lappeus, has long been at work on a plan of his own to discover the thieves, and to his credit be it spoken, and to the relief (permanent we hope,) of our citizens Day before yesterday Cardiff was arrested, charged with petty larceny and some articles found on his person tended to show that Kelley's surmises were correct, and that he had at last found his man Accordingly a search warrant was issued, the premises occupied by Cardiff were searched, a large quantity of the articles stolen from numerous citizens were found and the foundation of seven or eight charges (all felonies) are securely laid against Mr Cardiff and our city now has the pleasure of being freed from his presence for several years Among the articles recovered are several pieces of jewelry for which owners are wanted at the police headquarters

The officers having the matter in charge are certainly entitled to praise for the industry and perseverence displayed in running to earth the cunning and artful thief His examination on two of the charges will be had this morning at the Police Court

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Twenty-Second Annual Conference.

Sixth Day.

MORNING SESSION

Conference met at the hour appointed and opened with reading of the Scriptures singing and prayer by Rev H C Jenkins

Minutes of Monday afternoon were read

The Bishop stated that in his opinion, the minutes were scarcely full enough and requested that the same be prepared in a more complete form

After some modification the minutes were adopted

Rev Mr Spencer Chairman of the Committee on P C Advocate submitted a lengthy report in relation to the financial condition of that journal The report criticised in terms quite pointed and decisive the manner in which the Advocate had been conducted for the past three years attributing in a great measure the want of success to the present editor The report stated that the patronage of the paper was less during the past year than preceding ones and that the circulation had also decreased

As it was probable from the tone of the report that it would provoke a lengthy and heated discussion a motion was made and seconded to lay it on the table Debate was thus shut off and the report was laid on the table

The trial of Rev I D Driver was resumed The fourth and fifth specifications having been merged into one was read by the prosecution Examination of witnesses being in order Rev C W Shaw was called who testified that at a meeting held on the 12th of March, 1874 at Albany in the parsonage on which occasion the witness Rev Mr Driver and a number of other persons were present, some personal differences arose between the witness and Driver that the latter affirmed that the witness had uttered seven distinct falsehoods that Driver affirmed he had letters in his possession by which he could prove his charges The witness testified at considerable length as to the specifications charging Driver with falsehood

Wm Masters was next called and testified as to certain transactions which took place last March, before the Taylor-street Church Board, of which he was a member

I K Gill was called and testified in reference to the same subject

Rev Geo W Izer was called and testified as to the action of the Church Board, to whom was referred the charge of falsehood preferred against the defendant

Mr Shaw was recalled to give testimony in relation to certain statements alleged to have been made by Driver that he had taken the witness to Mr I P Rogers General Agent of the O & C R R, and given him an introduction A letter was read from Mr Rogers in which the statement was made that Driver never had given Shaw an introduction to him but that Mr Shaw came to him (Rogers) and introduced himself

J Q Thornton took the stand and testified that last spring Mr Driver came into his office in Salem and stated that he (Driver) had taken Shaw to Rogers and given him an introduction

E Turner Wm McPheeters and others were called to testify in relation to specifications of falsehood, after which the Conference adjourned until 2 o'clock

The trial thus far has proved devoid of interest excepting to the parties directly and immediately concerned, and has been most protracted and tedious in its details Most of the forenoon yesterday was consumed in the arguing of objections by opposing counsel and in wrangling over technical, unimportant points which served to weary the patience of the Conference, and retard the progress of the trial

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Conference convened pursuant to adjournment Bishop Merrill in the chair

The session was opened with prayer in which Rev. A C Fairchild led

The minutes of the morning session were read and corrections were approved

The roll was called and 16 members failed to answer to their names

The case of Mr Driver was taken up, Rev L T Woodward being called to the witness stand testified and was cross examined

Counsel for prosecution then read specification No 10 which contained 14 sections, each charging defendant with having made false statements

Rev J Wilson was called upon, but refused to testify because the parties to this case had settled their difficulties in a prior agreement, by which they had stipulated to let all these matters drop The question of excusing Mr Wilson from testifying was argued by several persons, and Mr Wilson withdrew his objection, and took the stand and testified

Rev C W Shaw was also called as a witness by the prosecution and gave evidence

Mr Todd, of the counsel for prosecution now took the witness stand and testified, as he said to the specifications, relating to "the action of the official meeting, the $125 and the seven lies

At the conclusion of Mr Todd's testimony Mr Shaw rose to a question of privilege to explain his connection with a certain Library transaction alluded to in Mr Todd's evidence

Mr Thornton, of counsel for the prosecution hereoffered himself as a witness in regard to the matters contained in specification No 10

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the motion to strike out specification No 10 was lost was made, seconded and debated at length by a number of the Conference The motion to reconsider was lost by a vote of 14 to 23

Judge Thornton then took the stand and testified at great length mingling with his evidence a good deal of argument against the defendant and two or three other gentlemen which could not have been rung in in any ordinary civil trial

Pending the testimony of Thornton the Conference adjourned until 7 P M

EVENING SESSION

Conference met at the hour designated Bishop Merrill in the chair Prayer was offered by Rev J W York

Minutes of the afternoon session were read and approved

The case of I D Driver was resumed The testimony of J Q Thornton was continued which was given at very great length After the direct examination he was subjected to a rigid cross examination Judge Thornton's testimony was in support of specification No 10 During the examination several letters were exhibited and portions of the same read

Rev J H Roork was called and testified in behalf of the prosecution

Dr Dickson was called upon to testify but declined to do so He stated he considered that the charges preferred could only originate in a wicked and malicious spirit and that he would refuse to assist in any manner to establish such charges

Some reflective and personal remarks followed this refusal on the part of Dr Dickson to testify, in which J Quinn Thornton Rev Wm McPheeters and the Doctor participated The personalities to say the least were in exceeding bad taste and exhibited anything but a Christian spirit.

Judge Thornton then stated that inasmuch as Dr Dickson refused to testify he would rest the 10th specification and also the case in behalf of the prosecution

Gov Gibbs then offered in behalf of the defense the depositions of Levi Fanning of Albany H F Williams and the members of the Quarterly Board, a meeting of which was held in Albany on the 9th of March 1874

Rev I D Driver was called to the stand to testify in his own behalf in which he emphatically denied every charge and specification preferred against him The statement of Mr Driver was very long requiring more than one hour in delivery

At the conclusion of Mr Driver's testimony the prosecution called Revs Izer and Spencer to rebut certain statements made by the defendant after which both counsel rested their case

On reassembling this morning the argument of counsel will be heard following which the Conference will vote as to the guilt or innocence of the accused

Conference adjourned until this morning at 8 30 o'clock

IN A BORROWED LIVERY

A very funny story, aimed at those clergy of the High Church persuasion who make their dress a part of their religion, is told as follows in a letter from London

The other day the Roman Catholic Bishop of Nottingham, being in London, walked in the cool of the evening to Kensington Gardens in company with a friend of his, an officer in the army They met a priest—to all appearances a Roman priest—who had a woman on his arm, who had her hand in his, and who was making fast and furious love to her The face of the Bishop flushed red, he passed on, but he instantly turned back, and overtaking the priest begged permission to speak to him "May I ask sir" said he, "if you are a priest?"

"Yes" was the reply

"A Catholic priest?"

"Yes"

"And may I ask under the jurisdiction of what bishop are you?"

"Before I answer that question" said the priest "I should like to know to whom I am talking"

"I am the Bishop of Nottingham" said his Lordship

"But we have no such bishop in the English Church" replied the priest

"Oh!" exclaimed the Bishop, "then you belong to the English Church I am delighted to hear it and I beg your pardon with all my life but I do wish that you would not walk about in our uniform!"

A DOG AMONG PORPOISES.—The Cape May Daily Wave tells a story of a Newfoundland dog While with his master during a stroll on the beach, the master noticed a large school of fish running in close to the breakers followed by a great drove of porpoises that were rolling and pouncing through the water in apparent excitement with the grand chase after the frightened finnies The dog Carlo noticing the rumpus and being encouraged by his master to venture out among the sea pigs, gave a shrill bark, and started out as gracefully as a dog of cork floating over the billows Onward he plunged and upon reaching the porpoises he sent up a terrible yelping, to the consternation of the sea pigs for dog barking among the sea residents is an unusual thing Carlo now plunged, first for one porpoise, and then for another and so excited the whole company that a grand charge was made and Carlo was obliged to beat a retreat which he did in great haste followed by scores of the enemy jumping snorting and tumbling about evidently much delighted at putting the Newfoundland stranger to flight The dog was chased close in shore his pursuers only retiring after getting among the breakers Upon an examination of Carlo after his novel venture Mr Carson found that he had been severely lashed in the side and had one ear partly bitten off This we believe is the first instance on record of a dog going out to battle with the hosts of the sea"

A STORY OF THE MILL RIVER DISASTER.—John Paul in the New York Tribune says While at Haydenville I cannot resist the temptation of telling you an anecdote connected with the flood, which I heard from a bright lady yesterday It shows that there are few events so terrible as not to have some thread of the ludicrous interwoven with them A brother of the late Governor Hayden was at the west on a visit when news arrived of the swift ruin which had come upon the family village In company with his daughter he at once started for home At one of the stations a newspaper was procured, containing full particulars of the disaster Putting on his spectacles, the old gentleman proceeded to read the particulars aloud with the most provoking deliberation, stopping to weigh and turn over every statement carefully in his mind as he went along "Let me have the paper father," begged the young lady, all impatience to know the extent of the calamity "No daughter have patience; I will read it to you" said the old gentleman and he went slowly on almost spelling out every word At last he came to a statement which arrested his attention "The boiler—of—the foundry—floated—away—on—the—flood—and—was—deposited—very—near—the—door—steps—of—Gov—Hayden's—house" This he read over very slowly twice, apparently [illegible] by the audacity of the thing, and unable to take it in its full length and breadth "That means" he said, finally, turning to his auditor to emphasize his analysis by a solemn forefinger "that means that Joel's biler is in Ann Lizzy's front yard!"

STRINGENT PROVISIONS OF THE MINNESOTA GAME LAW.—Woodcock may be lawfully killed from July 4 to Nov 1 prairie chickens from Aug 15 to Nov 1 quail from Sept 1 to Nov 1 pheasants from Oct 1 to Dec 15, brook trout from April 1 to Sept 1 deer from Oct 1 to Dec 15

For violating the provisions of law protecting the above game the penalty ranges from $5 to $75 and also the forfeiture of gun, dogs etc used

For having the game in possession before these dates, and offering it for sale, a penalty of from $20 to $500 except that venison may be sold up to January 1

For breaking up the nest of any game bird or harmless song bird $5 to $50 fine

For killing any harmless song bird $5 to $50 fine, and forfeiture of gun etc

For catching fish with a net in any lake, $5 to $50 fine

For entering growing grain with a dog and gun $10 fine

A QUEER POLITICAL SITUATION.—There is a curious situation of affairs in the 1st Iowa District A Republican Convention was held at Fairfield on Monday last and Geo W McCrary the present incumbent of Cheap Transportation notoriety was renominated After the Convention it appeared that the nomination was struck off one John H Gear who had been a candidate for the position When he found he could not be chosen he nominated Mr McCrary, and as soon as he accepted he went to him and told him he must decline or he would beat him out of sight Mr McCrary accordingly declined and a new Convention has been called at Burlington which Gear will do his best to pack The whole disgraceful business is a pitiful satire upon the amount of influence which the average citizen has in nominating conventions

AN UNSOPHISTICATED TRAVELER.—A conductor on the Pennsylvania railroad tells the following "At an eastern station he received on board a fine looking specimen of an old country gentleman When he passed through the cars the old gentleman handed up his ticket which was duly punched and returned to him After passing the next call station the conductor again called for the old gentleman's ticket He looked up in surprise, and informed the puncher of tickets that he had thrown it out of the window "Why did you do that?" asked the conductor The old man replied "Why I thought if you didn't want it I didn't" The face of the old man was so honest and his knowledge of railroad traveling evidently so limited, that the conductor accepted his word and carried him to his destination

THE CENTENNIAL.—A novel project for assisting the Centennial has been devised and will it is expected be carried out under the direction of Dr Linderman, director of the mint It is proposed to strike at the Philadelphia mint a device to be furnished by Dr Linderman two medals commemorative of the Centennial one made of silver about the size of a silver dollar for popular circulation costing probably $1 50 or $2 and the other a more elaborate and costly medal to be sold for $5 or $8 The profit on the former of which several hundred thousand are expected to be sold, will be about seventy cents each and the other about the same proportion after paying the expenses of the mint

GOOD STUFF FOR DREAMS.—Almost every one goes regularly into the dreaming business but few turn it to such practical use as a lady of Winn[illegible] who has just dreamed an ex[illegible] back to its sorrowing owner J C Grant of the same place The jewel had been missing for several months and though active search was made for it its whereabouts could not be discovered until the lady dreamed three nights in succession that it was in a certain deep eddy of the river, and there, sure enough, it was

THE NEW CUSTOMS LAW.—The law of June 22d last known as the Moiety law permits the entry without invoice of all goods of less value than $100 It appears that at some Custom Houses through misconstruction of the law invoices are still required for all importations The Secretary of the Treasury to day instructed the Collector of the port of New York that importations of $100 and less in value may be imported without invoices

A railroad ball will be given at Olympia this (Wednesday) evening

STRENGTH OF THE GRANGER ORGANIZATION—NEGROES NOT ADMITTED.—The Secretary of the National Grange at Washington states that the number of Grange organizations throughout the country is very rapidly increasing During the month of July alone 500 new Lodges were constituted The accessions were chiefly in the Southern States There are now 20 000 Lodges in the whole country, including an aggregate membership of 800 000 persons The colored Southern politicians who have been at Washington state that only white persons are admitted to these Granges and that they are consequently regarded by the colored people with much distrust

"And when in after days," said a learned counsel in the Court room "we meet together around the social hearth, where I shall no longer be oppressed by the heat and burden of the day and you gentlemen will find yourselves in other scenes than this at rest from arduous labors then as we talk together of by-gone times, may you be able to say that the first thing you did on returning to the jury room was to unanimously agree that you would place no reliance whatever upon the testimony of that man Smith"

Henry Ward Beecher is under contract with Mr James Redpath for 20 lectures to be delivered in Boston and other parts of New England early in the autumn The sum to be paid for them is said to be $8 000

Mr Spurgeon celebrated his arrival at the age of 40 years, at his tabernacle the other day in the presence of a congregation of nearly 6 000 devoted admirers.

THE DEPTHS OF VICE.

A LADY OF THE UPPER TEN FOUND IN A BROTHEL BEASTLY INTOXICATED

A saddening scene was witnessed in front of a fashionable bagnio, on Seventh street, between Locust and St Charles the other afternoon Very few passers by were to be seen upon the street, for it was about 3 o clock, as the door opened and a woman was carried out and deposited in a hack which had been standing before the maison de joie for some fifteen or twenty minutes A glance at the woman's face as she was hurried into the hack, revealed in unmistakable terms the fact that she was deeply intoxicated The mouth was open the jaws fallen apart, the eyes closed, the face almost sodden and the helpless, heavy figure spoke of hopeless despair But the face was one which would attract immediate attention anywhere Dark flowing hair covered a face in which delicacy refinement and [illegible] nty marked every lineament, the eyes were a sparkling and brilliant black and the beautifully carved outlines of the figure showed that the victim of intox[illegible] was yet young.

"Thank God, we are rid of her," [illegible] the landlady, as she [illegible] the door

Common place [illegible] Yes, but the attending circumstances make this case one of mournful interest A few months ago the woman was one of the belles of the first [illegible] of Cincinnati and hundreds of the flower of the youth of that city have done homage at her feet Her father is the proprietor of one the most extensive marble yards of that city, and reputed to be worth several hundred thousand dollars Less than a year ago she was married to a young St Louis physician, of wealth culture and refinement who brought her to a home in this city where she has since resided Her husband had been a victim of the grossest dissipation before his marriage and soon after the honeymoon again took to his former courses Within the past few months he has been several times arrested by the police, and those who read the police reports of the morning papers are familiar with his name During the progress of this scene in front of the bagnio he was in waiting at a drug store on the corner of Seventh and Locust and when the hack drove up to the place he jumped in and the party drove off It is said that the wife came to the house the night before in search of her husband whom she had heard to be engaged in a liaison with one of the girls and that she remained at the house all night drinking wine with the result described above Whether she found her husband or not the rumor is that she spent the night with the landlady whose disgust at her victim was so forcibly expressed the next afternoon

A reporter called at the place last evening and was confronted on the steps with a prostitute with a white dress and a brazen face

Is the landlady in?" asked the reporter

"No," said the prostitute in muslin and brass. Vat did ye vant of her?"

I came to see about that woman that was taken away from here the other afternoon dead drunk

Vat did you vant of her?

I want to know where she was taken to

They dook her to her parents Vat do you vant to know for? Who are ye enny how?

I am a reporter

'Well, they don t want anything said about it so get off!'

Well you have told me all I want good evening, And so the reporter left with an impression that only one piece of information was given him and that was a lie —St Louis Globe.

A LITTLE MISTAKE

HOW A HARTFORD ANTIQUARIAN MISTOOK A CALLER'S CHARACTER.

A distinguished scholar and antiquarian of this city who writes LL D after his name, tells an amusing story on himself which is entirely too good to keep. In his position as librarian of a certain institution he is called upon to examine and pu[illegible] new publications as may seem to be desirable for its shelves and as a necessary con[illegible] is much sought after by agents for books. At 10 A M each day he promptly appears at the library, [illegible] remains at his residence immersed in his duties and [illegible] by visitors.

[illegible] two or three weeks ago at being called to the door and there meeting a gentleman with a volume under his arm, and [illegible] the distinguishing characteristics of a book [illegible]

With a hasty glance at the book, and without waiting to hear what his caller had to say, the Doctor sharply remarked

Don t want to see you sir! Can t do anything for you here Call at the library at 10 o clock

Caller—Excuse me, sir, I have just arrived in town this morning, and I only wish to—

Doctor—Don t make any difference call at 10 o clock I'll look at your book then

Caller—But you don't understand, Mr —— I want to—

Doctor—I think I know well enough what you want, and I don t care to talk with you now

By this time the Doctor annoyed by the pertinacity of his caller approached him with his usual nervous energy, while the caller with a look of perfect astonishment, and supposing that the Doctor intended to put him out into the street backed along the hall toward the door Just as he reached the step his courage rallied, and he said in a soothing voice

"Now Mr —— be reasonable I only want to—

Doctor—Never mind what you want! Call at the—

Caller (determined to finish his sentence or perish in the attempt)—to ask you a single question

Doctor—Well well what is it?

The caller then made an inquiry respecting certain matters in the history of the aborigines in Rhode Island and while speaking a look of [illegible] mingled with pleasure overspread the countenance of his hearer and he ejaculated

My dear sir who are you?"

The visitor then introduced himself as a well known Professor from Rhode Island who has quite a reputation for his antiquarian researches whereupon he was received with the utmost cordiality and nothing further was said about calling at the library at 10 o clock sir! The ending of this little incident was pleasing enough but if you desire to see the doctor at his residence it is just as well not to go with a book under your arm —Hartford Post

HOW GENERAL CONCHA'S BODY WAS CARRIED OFF THE BATTLE-FIELD —You have already heard in detail how the General met his death in animating his army to the attack on the Carlist entrenchment at Monte Muro Shortly before he climbed the spire of Abarzuza church to take a coup d'œil of the line of battle He was accompanied by a member of his staff to whom he spoke seriously and confidentially It seemed as if he had a presentiment of what was to happen for he remarked that if any untoward event occurred in the action about to be commenced he wished it to be borne in mind that, though he had intrusted his plans to nobody the remaining Estella when taken formed no part of them He intended merely to garrison it against future attack, and then to pass on with the army into all the Carlists' lairs one after the other Descending from the tower, he walked along the high road till close to the fatal Monte Muro where he observed the final repulse of one of his divisions before the impetuosity of the Carlists defense. The road at this point becoming very bad an aide-de-camp said to him General had you not better mount? His horse being close by he seized the mane and had one foot in the stirrup when the fatal ball struck him and he fell senseless to the ground All that he could articulate being Muerto en los Guerrillas! Quick as lightning the young Lieutenant of Hussars Montero lifted his inanimate body across his own horse and, putting spurs to the animal literally fled with it in the direction of Abarzuza, followed by one or two chosen companions the Carlist cavalry in full pursuit the moment they perceived what was going on On went Montero with his precious burden Once or twice his horse slipped over the rugged highway but, true to the hand and the spur of his gallant rider he was up again in a moment Dale! Dale! Give it to us Give it us! cried a Carlist in pursuit, and a hand to hand [illegible] between the Carlist and the Republican [illegible] ters who rode after Montero Just as the latter reached the [illegible] the body slipped off the saddle but was instantly replaced and carried into the little inn All that I have narrated passed within five or six minutes In five minutes more the Marshal had ceased to breathe —Madrid Cor London T[illegible]

Another quiet day is experienced in our local money market, the demands on our banks being comparatively small The volume of collections from both city and country is quite fair and no reaction [illegible] of the fall trade will be likely to remain long [illegible] though the apparent plethoric condition of the market will probably end with the current month as balances now being carried by the banks will be drawn and applied in the movement of the grain crops. The means available for this purpose however are ample and all that is [illegible] to bring about a state of activity in shipping circles is a [illegible] of the disposition of holders to sell their grain at current rates [illegible] tonnage is secured and better [illegible] in the markets of demand or the farmers conclude to accept the situation and sell at [illegible] offers.

[illegible] from Europe on the 7th inst report a loss of £366 000 sterling in bullion in the Bank of England during the week This was the regular day for the weekly meeting of the managers of the bank and the minimum rate of discount was raised from 3 to 4 per cent. Various reasons are assigned for this step, many assuming to believe that it was brought about by the contemplated operations of the Rothschild Seligman syndicate which recently assumed the negotiation of remaining [illegible] per cent. United States funding bonds. At the time the contract between the treasury and this syndicate was signed the bank rate was 2½ per cent. In addition to the home drain of bullion [illegible] ing crops now about commencing the movement of coin to Paris was [illegible] the change

Miscellaneous

The offer of the ship Marionne in our advertising columns is one which we commend to those who who desire to ship their own products

As the season advances the feeling in mercantile circles improves and under the present favorable influences and the flattering prospects that surround the prospective trade of the city jobbers are operating with full confidence of realizing the largest fall trade ever before witnessed in this market.

The Commercial Herald of San Francisco says

Tonnage is plentiful both disengaged and otherwise The usual dispatch is not now given to ships and we look to see heavy bills of demurrage before the close of this month There is plenty of wheat in the State but it is held for an advance. This advance cannot be paid as [illegible] is now the price paid in Liverpool for cargoes on the passage and wheat and freights now ruling make the cost fully [illegible]

A San Francisco paper of last week contains the following There are some one hundred or more vessels chartered to arrive to load wheat for the United Kingdom and unless wheat arrives more freely than it has yet done since harvest there must inevitably be a collision before September We await the result with considerable anxiety We can see no escape from a serious collapse The best offer to-day for the only disengaged iron ship in port is £3 12s 6d but more is asked. An American ship taken during the week for Liverpool direct was chartered at £3 15s 6d and another for Cork taken at £3 17s 6d.

There is at present quite a scarcity of side bacon in this market, and prices have advanced materially during the past week

The bark Chasca from this port which arrived at Queenstown August 8th was 139 days from the mouth of the Columbia. She carried about 10 000 centals wheat, valued on board here at $19 950 Her tonnage was, say 600 tons at $[illegible] per ton $[illegible] 000 which, added to cost of cargo $[illegible]4 950 Suppose her [illegible] sold in Liverpool at 12s 3d realizing $[illegible] 800 leaving a margin of $3 284 to cover insurance commissions etc

Shipping Intelligence.

The John L. [illegible], from San Francisco, arrived a few minutes before 12 o clock this evening

The schooner [illegible] Bond is receiving a cargo of produce and mdse. for Tillamook.

The grain carrying vessels in port are idly waiting for the receipt of wheat, which comes in slowly The ships here and about ready to load are the Orissa Moonbeam Alumina Hermine and Mari dana.

The Beulah Ida F Taylor and perhaps one or two others are in the river The Ida F Taylor will load with lumber at Cometville for San Francisco though had the grain been ready she would have taken wheat.

[illegible] Market.

WHEAT—This cereal of the new crop is coming in very slowly for sale Buyers do not seem to urge the market although there are now in the river five foreign bound vessels supposed to have come here seeking cargoes of wheat and four of them under charter prior to arrival A few sales have been effected during the week at $1 60 per cental and we may expect some movement ere long, if exporters are to make a concession of the difference which now exists between them and holders but if the latter are to give way trade in [illegible] be dull for some time None of the vessels here have yet begun to load

FLOUR—The stocks are small but owing to a diminished demand for shipping caused by the incoming of the product of the new wheat [illegible] furnish the requirements of the trade here are easily met. EGGS—For a long time San Francisco has been receiving her supplies of this article largely from the East but recently that trade has received a back set in the way of large lots in such miserable condition as to prove a serious loss to shippers Hence the demand for Oregon eggs is much improved Our market is quotable firm at [illegible] cents ₱ dozen
